COALITION to STOP
VIOLENCE AGAINST
NATIVE WOMEN

STATISTICS

Service providers in New Mexico recorded male children experiencing higher rates of sexual assault (38%) compared to female children (22%). (1)

Offenders of sexual offenses are overwhelmingly males in rape cases, for both female and male victims. The offender in 94% of law enforcement rape cases and 96% of service provider and SANE rape cases were male. (1)

In New Mexico, Law Enforcement cases revealed that 82% of Sexual Assault Offenders were older than their Sexual Assault Victims. (1)

RECOMMENDATIONS

- Have culturally relevant curricula for adolescent boys and girls to understand the impacts of gender roles and unequal power relations among genders.
- Having education on self-esteem, self-respect, components for healthy relationships and normal sexual development
- Implementing sexual abuse education, such as how to report abuse and how to get help, for elementary and high school students.
- Engaging parents, guardians and family members in prevention education and outreach to, "recognize and respond to a suspected sexual assault of a child or child's disclosure." (1)
